An Asian and a Westerner

Recently, Penguin and Mev realized how Asians and Westerners think differently.

Penguin was playing on her computer when she found an interesting survey that was featured on a documentary.

They showed some images and asked questions to Asian and Western people.

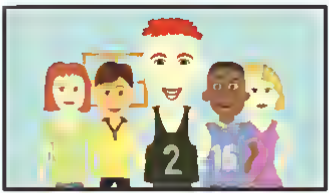
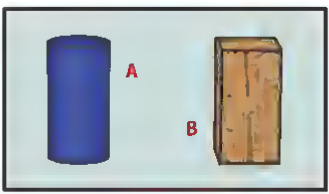
Q1. Which one is at the front?



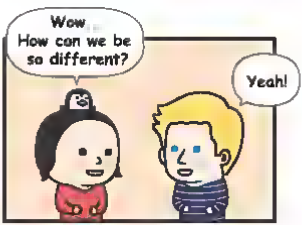
Q2. The boy in the middle of this picture looks happy.

Does the boy in the second picture look happy?

Q3. Let's call this wooden cylinder a 'dax'.



There is a blue cylinder (A) and a wooden cuboid (B). Which one do you think would also be called a 'dax'?



They couldn't help thinking that they were very different becouse of their answers.

Anyway time flew by like any other evening.

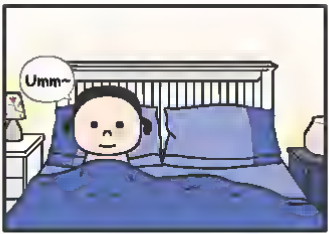
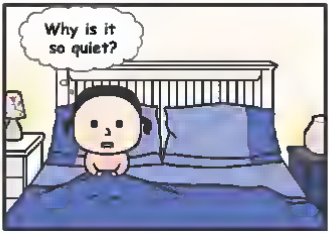
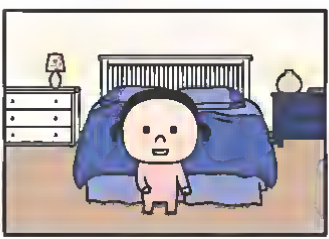
They were getting ready to sleep



But...

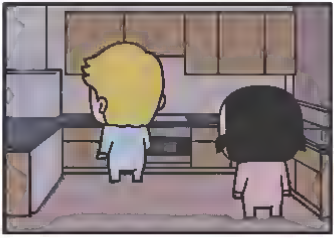


... Penguin couldn't hear any sound from Mev even though he went ta clean his teeth.

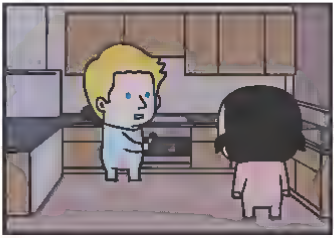


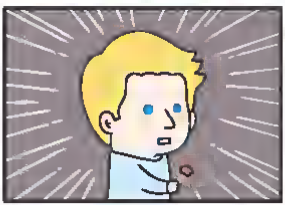
She wondered why so she went out of the bedroom to check what was going on.

She saw...



... in the dark kitchen...





that Mev was eating
bits of pork out of the kim-chi jji-gae that was left over.

The bits of pork in Kim-chi jjigae made the east and the west think the same way.
